

2nd World Biotechnology Congress

December 04-05, 2017 | Sao Paulo, Brazil

Effect of synthesis process variables on morphological and mechanical properties of vitreous carbon scaffolds for tissue engineering applications

Natalia Terán-Acuña, Viviana Güiza-Argüello and Ely Córdoba-Tuta
Universidad Industrial de Santander, Colombia

Vitreous carbon foams have been shown to promote bone cell adhesion, mineralization and proliferation. However, their low mechanical resistance as well as their high manufacturing cost restricts their utilization in the biomedical area. The purpose of