

9th World Digital Pathology & Pathologists Congress

December 05-06, 2016 Madrid, Spain

Digital pathology: Update of digital pathology in practice in USA and China

Digital pathology practice in USA and China has been established. It is the result of the development of digital pathology technology and the application of digital pathology technology in clinical practice. The development of digital pathology technology is the result of the development of digital pathology technology and the application of digital pathology technology in clinical practice. The development of digital pathology technology is the result of the development of digital pathology technology and the application of digital pathology technology in clinical practice.

Biography

Dongfeng Tan, MD, PhD, is an Associate Professor and Director of the Department of Pathology, Beijing University of Traditional Chinese Medicine. He is also a member of the Chinese Society of Digital Pathology and the Chinese Society of Pathology. He has published numerous papers in the field of digital pathology and has participated in several international conferences. He is currently working on the development of digital pathology technology and its application in clinical practice.