

Prevalence of arm lymphedema among patients with breast cancer surgery

Radha Acharya Pandey and Shilpa Shrestha

.DWKPDQGX 8QLYHUVLW\ +RVSLWDO 1HSDO

Background: Lymphedema is a common complication of cancer therapeutics; its prevalence, treatment outcomes and costs have been poorly defined. It is potentially a debilitating condition in breast cancer survivors which negatively affects the quality of life. is

Notes: