

4th Annual Congress on MENTAL HEALTH

April 12, 2024 | Webinar

Cfxcpeki"vjg"Li jv"ci ckpuv"crqtqr j qdk<"C"rtqvqq"hqt"xkevko"fgvgevkqp

Amaia Yurrebaso Macho
USAL, Spain

Aporophobia, also known as aversion to the poor, represents a form of discrimination that poses significant challenges, resulting in profound consequences such as physical and psychological harm. This study outlines the development of an innovative tool designed for assessing the risk of aporophobia. The creation of the tool involved a comprehensive review of existing literature and the utilization of the Delphi methodology, combined with expert input. This work unveils the