

community health nursing is a branch of nursing that focuses on promoting and maintaining the health of the community. It involves working with individuals, families, and groups to identify health problems, provide education, and implement interventions to improve health outcomes. Community health nursing is a multidisciplinary approach that involves collaboration with other healthcare professionals, such as doctors, nurses, and social workers.

Emerging trend in community health nursing

Community health nursing is a branch of nursing that focuses on promoting and maintaining the health of the community. It involves working with individuals, families, and groups to identify health problems, provide education, and implement interventions to improve health outcomes. Community health nursing is a multidisciplinary approach that involves collaboration with other healthcare professionals, such as doctors, nurses, and social workers. The role of community health nursing is to promote health, prevent disease, and provide care for the community. Community health nursing is a dynamic field that is constantly evolving. There are many emerging trends in community health nursing, such as the use of technology, the focus on prevention, and the emphasis on community participation. Community health nursing is a challenging and rewarding profession that requires a commitment to the health of the community.

Conclusion

Community health nursing is a branch of nursing that focuses on promoting and maintaining the health of the community. It involves working with individuals, families, and groups to identify health problems, provide education, and implement interventions to improve health outcomes. Community health nursing is a multidisciplinary approach that involves collaboration with other healthcare professionals, such as doctors, nurses, and social workers.

Community health nursing is a branch of nursing that focuses on promoting and maintaining the health of the community. It involves working with individuals, families, and groups to identify health problems, provide education, and implement interventions to improve health outcomes. Community health nursing is a multidisciplinary approach that involves collaboration with other healthcare professionals, such as doctors, nurses, and social workers. The role of community health nursing is to promote health, prevent disease, and provide care for the community. Community health nursing is a dynamic field that is constantly evolving. There are many emerging trends in community health nursing, such as the use of technology, the focus on prevention, and the emphasis on community participation. Community health nursing is a challenging and rewarding profession that requires a commitment to the health of the community.

References

1. Socrates Litsios (2002) Int J Health Serv 32: 709-732.
2. Ved R, Scott K, Gupta G, Ummer O, Singh S, et al. (2019) How are gender inequalities facing India's one million ASHAs being addressed? Policy origins and adaptations for the world's largest all-female community health worker programme. Hum Resour Health 17: 3.
3. Chokshi M, Patil B, Khanna R, Neogi S, Sharma J, Paul V, Zodpey S, et al. (2016) Health systems in India. J Perinatol 36: 9-12.
4. Mishra Arima (2014) Trust and teamwork matter' Community health workers' experiences in integrated service delivery in India. Glob Public Health 9: 960-974.
5. Ezech Alex (2016) Improving the health and welfare of people who live in slums (PDF). The Lancet 389: 559-570.
6. Sharma Aradhana (2006) Crossbreeding Institutions, Breeding Struggle: Women's Employment, Neoliberal Governmentality, and State (Re) Formation in India. Cult Anthropol 21.
7. International NGOs and primary health care in Mozambique: the need for a new model of collaboration. Soc sci med 56: 725-738.
8. Politics, primary healthcare and health. J Epidemiol Community Health 65: 653-655.
9. Marcos, Cueto (2004) the ORIGINS of Primary Health Care and SELECTIVE Primary Health Care. Am J Public Health 94: 1864-1874?
10. Socrates Litsios (1994) the Christian Medical Commission and the Development of WHO Primary Health Care Approach. Am J Public Health 94: 1884-1893.