

Soil Carbon: The Cornerstone of Sustainable Agriculture and Climate Resilience

Department of Agriculture and Research Center, Albania

Soil carbon is a critical component of the Earth's terrestrial carbon cycle, playing a vital role in both agriculture and climate resilience. This short communication aims to highlight the significance of soil carbon in sustaining agricultural productivity, mitigating climate change, and promoting global food security. Understanding the dynamics of soil carbon

