

Statistical Procedure for the Downscaling of Daily Rainfall Time Series at Ungauged Locations

Myeong-Ho Yeo*

Water and Environmental Research Institute of the Western Pacific, University of Guam, Mangilao, USA

Corresponding author: Water and Environmental Research Institute of the Western Pacific, University of Guam; E-mail: yeom@triton.uog.edu

Received date: Jul 29, 2020; Accepted date: Sep 18, 2020; Published date: Sep 22, 2020

Copyright: © 2020 Yeo M. This is an open-access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution License, which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original author and source are credited.

Keywords: Water; Environment; Ungauged Locations; Downscaling of Daily Rainfall Time; Statistical Procedure

Short Communication

Implications for Science and technology development

The management and allocation of water resources have been considered as one of the most significant endeavors in human society. However, in most practical applications, precipitation records at the location of interest are often either limited or unavailable due to the lack of adequate network of rainfall measurements. Moreover, the estimation and prediction of hydrological variables with climate change conditions for ungauged sites remains a crucial challenge for

