

Key words : Temperature trends; global biodiversity; remote sensing; climate change; ecosystems; species distribution; habitat loss

Introduction

The global climate has been experiencing significant changes in recent decades, with rising temperatures being one of the most pronounced indicators. These changes have profound implications researchers and policymakers use remote sensing data to develop adaptive conservation strategies. By understanding the spatial and

---