Abstract

Their fall from poise, started in the 18th century during the British colonial rule They lived on the fringes of Indian Society and faced discrimination in workplaces, jobs, public places and services such as health and education. As members of the marginalized and socially excluded sector, they were always at the receiving end of negative behaviour rights directly from the Constitution, especially the application of Article 19, thus, acting as a bold motive in acknowledging the rights of a transgender being. The remedies that the Court awards are also exceptionally fascinating. These mandates have, as of now, been
