
Depending upon product and services, the global market for medical pathology can be segmented into consumables, instruments and services. The segment of instruments can be divided further into tissue processor, microtomes, slide strainer etc. Introduction of reasonable scanners for pathology practices, personalized drugs and integration of laboratory info systems (LIS) and digital pathology systems are predictable to supply important development opportunities for makers in the coming years. There are currently about 2,00,800 physicians licensed to practice in France. In the last 30 years the increase in the number of physicians had tripled, but the rate of increase is now very slight.

Our main motive is to uplift the inner hidden talent and knowledge to pursue the Histopathology 2020 research in frontier areas of science and research. We welcome all the women scholars, scientists, researchers from Universities/industries who are having minimum of +10 years of experience to join in this forum. We wholeheartedly welcome all the talented and dynamic women professionals. Anyone can propose this award through online.

The services phase, among them, leads the market at present on account of the rising instances of critical illnesses needing urgent medical attention. In 2016, it accounted for a major 45.9% share in the market.
