

A Note on Developmental Disabilities

Varshini Bulla*

Department of Psychiatry, Andhra University, Andhra Pradesh, India

Developmental disabilities are a group of conditions due to an impairment in physical, learning, language, or behaviour areas. These conditions start during the formative time frame, may affect every day working, and normally last all through an individual's lifetime.

To varying degrees, the causes of many other neurological

